At the word "two," the second young man slammed away his pistol, leaped a high board fence, "heeled it" around the corner of a barn, and hid behind a peach tree. The last heard of them was that number one was seen peeping out from between the leaves in a tobacco patch, while number two had crawled under the barn. Each declared his honor entirely tric man.

How He Loves Him!

He was a large, fat, burly man, on whose head the frosts of many winters, the contents of many barrels, and many sleepless nights spent in debauchery, had left a few faint streaks of white. He was trying to look dignified, but he only succeeded in looking beastly. A few loafers were idling about him, and as he looked ppon them, he broke forth in this strain:

At this point one of the loafers asked him who did want to pay fifty cents a day, as he would like to have a job during these Democratic times.

"Oh, that's Mackley's price; he never said anything of the kind, but then, you know, we must have some kind of a story to catch the doubtful voter with, so we've started that." Neuralgia, Nervous Headache, and Tic Douloureux.

In headaches caused by disordered state of the nervous system or Tic Douloureux, we urge local treatment as being the most rational and most satisfactory. No remedy, we can safely say, will relieve the suffering more speedily, or with so little annoyance to the sensitive patient, as Lawson's Curative, which is for sale by all respectable druggists. One application will frequently entirely dissipate the pain and soothe the sufferer to a refreshing sleep. The Curative is a nerve tonic, acting by absorbtion, penetrating quickly to the diseased nerves and restoring them to their normal state.

When this is accomplished the pain cases. It is for this reason we direct that the spine (the nerve center) should be thoroughly rubbed with the Curative as well as the parts which are painful.
